

Munich Airport voted “Best Airport in Europe” at WWA

At the annual World Airport Awards by Skytrax, the airport achieved an outstanding sixth place

During the COVID-19 pandemic, Munich Airport remains at the top of the European rankings: at the annual World Airport Awards by the London-based aviation research institute, Skytrax, the Bavarian hub airport was once again awarded the title of "Best Airport in Europe" on the basis of a passenger survey. In the global ranking, the airport achieved an outstanding sixth place.

"This enormous appreciation encourages us to manage the current difficult situation and is at the same time a great motivation to strive to ensure that our airport can soon regain a top position among hub airports in terms of passenger volume as well," says Jost Lamers, CEO, Munich Airport.

The World Airport Awards 2021 are the result of a global survey of passengers from more than 100 countries conducted between August 2020 and July 2021.

During this year's awards, Doha Hamad Airport was honored as the world's best airport, followed by Tokyo Haneda Airport in second place and Singapore Changi in third place. The World Airport Awards were the result of a global survey of passengers from more than 100 countries conducted between August 2020 and July 2021.

At Munich Airport, the accolade continues a remarkable series: the airport has been recognized as "Best Airport in Europe" for the 14th time in the last 16 years.

The World Airport Awards 2021 are the result of a global survey of passengers from more than 100 countries conducted between August 2020 and July 2021

